SAN ANTONIO PHARMACIST PLEADS GUILTY TO ILLEGAL DRUG DISPENSING IN CONNECTION WITH INTERNET PHARMACY OPERATION

(SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS) A San Antonio pharmacist faces up to five years in Federal prison after pleading guilty to illegally dispensing controlled substances through the use of The PillBox—one of the largest Internet pharmacy operations of its kind.

Appearing before U.S. Magistrate Judge Pamela Mathy yesterday afternoon, 55-year-old WILLIAM ADAMS STALLKNECHT, on behalf of himself and two corporations—the S & H SCRIPT SHOP, INC., and the PILLBOX MEDICAL CENTER, LLC.—pled guilty to illegally dispensing hydrocodone, a Schedule III controlled substance and agreed to forfeit $1 million, his interests in the Internet addresses used in the scheme, and his pharmacy licenses. Sentencing is scheduled for 9:00am on August 29, 2002, before U.S. District Judge Orlando Garcia.

Last month, a Federal grand jury in San Antonio indicted Stallknecht, the corporations, DAVID LYMAN BRYSON, a 63-year-old Kerrville, Texas physician, ERNESTO ALFONSO CANTU, a 57-year-old San Antonio physician, MARK ROBERT WADE, a 47-year-old Memphis, Tennessee physician, and 34-year-old San Antonio resident BRIAN THOMAS HILDEBRAND, with conspiring to illegally dispense controlled substances and conspiring to commit money laundering. Bryson, Cantu, Wade, and Hildebrand are awaiting trial on the charges.

The PillBox business operation included the web-based pharmacy and a web-based physician referral service, both parts of the scheme to dispense large quantities of hydrocodone and diazepam, as well as other controlled substances and dangerous drugs. The Pill Box website referred customers seeking prescription drugs to a physician referral website in order to obtain a doctor's prescription. The indictment alleges that through the referral website, Hildebrand would schedule internet or telephonic consultations between customers and doctors, including Bryson, Cantu and Wade, for the purpose of issuing prescriptions for the requested drugs. The doctors and Pill Box split an initial consultation fee whenever a prescription was issued. Based solely on the internet or telephonic consultation, Bryson, Cantu and Wade would prescribe such drugs as hydrocodone and diazepam, which Stallknecht and the PillBox pharmacy would fill and dispense. According to the indictment, the doctors would issue prescriptions without establishing a patient history, performing a mental or physical exam, using appropriate diagnostic or laboratory testing, or providing any means to monitor medication response.

Between January 1, 2000 to June 12, 2001, the operation allegedly grossed over $7.7 million from the Internet sales of hydrocodone and diazepam.

Both the Texas Board of Medical Examiners and the Tennessee Board of Medical Examiners require that a valid physician-patient relationship exist prior to any doctor prescribing any dangerous medication to an individual. Both of those medical licensing authorities require a documented medical history and a physical examination by the treating physician as well as an evaluation for potential addiction and the development of a treatment plan in order for a valid physician-patient relationship to exist.

The charge of conspiracy to illegally dispense controlled substances carries a maximum punishment of up to 5 years confinement and a $250,000.00 fine. The charge of money laundering carries a maximum punishment of 20 years confinement and a fine of either $500,000.00 or twice the value of the property involved in the offense, whichever is greater.

It is important to note that an indictment is not evidence of guilt.

This case was the result of an 18-month-long investigation by Drug Enforcement Administration Diversion Investigators, and Special Agents of the Food and Drug Administration and the Internal Revenue Service in coordination with the United States Attorney's Office, Western District of Texas. The Texas Board of Pharmacy and Texas Board of Medical Examiners provided significant cooperation in the course of the investigation. Assistant United States Attorney Greg Surovic is prosecuting this case on behalf of the Government.
